YOU'RE IN SAFE HANDS

When you visit your dentist wouldn't you like to be confident that everything possible is being done to promote your safety and wellbeing?

At Pacific Smiles Dental Centres, we take everybody's safety very seriously, including patients, employees and dentists. We uphold the occupational health and safety standards set by the National Safety Council of Australia and follow the strict infection control guidelines of Australian Standards and other relevant national and state-based statutory bodies.

To help keep you safe, we undertake the following practices:

- Use of single-use disposable items where appropriate.
- Purpose designed sterilisation areas which follow contemporary central sterilising design for instrument processing.
- Thorough cleansing of instruments prior to sterilisation to remove debris and particles. This includes ultrasonic baths and other purpose-built equipment which are subject to quality control monitoring processes.
- Sterilisation of instruments in modern sterilisers (autoclaves) which are monitored and validated in strict compliance with the Australian Standard for bench-top sterilisation.
- Bagging and storage of instruments to maintain sterility.

- Instrument tracking procedures under which sterilised instruments are tracked according to date, handler, sterilisation cycle and patient using bar codes and handheld scanners, a system which is now used widely throughout Australia.
- Digital radiography (x-rays) to significantly reduce radiation exposure to patients, compared to traditional x-ray equipment
- Continuous training for our valued employees in infection control procedures and occupational health and safety to keep them up to date with current trends.

You can relax when you visit a Pacific Smiles Dental Centre and be assured that we are taking care of your health and safety, plus the health and safety of our employees and practitioners, everyday.

All procedures at Pacific Smiles Dental Centres are carried out using state-of-the-art equipment in modern, friendly facilities which offer the convenience of extended opening hours.
